plant as incorrectly labelled and put aside. Enquiries demonstrated that, at that time, not a single plant in the UK distinguished small volumes of goat from mutton,” said Bagley.

He questioned the FSA's approach to the situation and accused the body of neglect.

“Repeated FSA audits of the Farmbox operation had identified no problems of this nature. We question why this business was ruined because of a victimless simple mistake, involving no financial gain? We also question whether the FSA staff who failed to assist the plant by neglecting to UT 4yion awarnems of thno prob durolvimany rouleceFSA audihav theen UK le ccusoring
